

STREET FOOD

Warmup Questions

1. Do you like to eat?
2. Have you ever eaten food outside on the street?
3. What kinds of food do you think people sell on the street?
4. Do you think street food is a good breakfast/lunch/dinner option?
5. In your country, are there any famous street foods?
6. Do you think street food is more expensive or cheaper than restaurant food?
7. Would you ever try a new type of street food, even if you didn't know what it was?
8. Imagine you have a street food cart. What kind of food would you sell?
9. When you think of street food, do you think of sunny, rainy, or cold weather.
10. Have you ever seen a movie or TV show where someone eats street food?

Street Food Introduction

Every day, millions of people buy and sell food on the streets. This includes all sorts of yummy things to eat and drink, already cooked and ready to enjoy. This street food is a big part of how cities work to feed everyone. Street food is just food and drinks that people make and sell in public places, like markets or right on the street. You can eat it right away or save it for later. This food comes from many different cultures, so there are lots of interesting flavors to try! No matter where you go in a city, you're sure to find some delicious street food.

Selling food on the streets is an old way to make money. Street food is any kind of food or drink that's ready to eat and sold by vendors in public places. They might have a small shop, a pushcart, or just a stand on the side of the road. In many countries, women are the ones who cook the food, so they often sell it on the streets too. This is because selling food on the street is a good way to make money, especially in places where there aren't many other jobs. Also, street food sellers can often choose their own hours, which is helpful for women who have families to take care of. However, even though there are many women selling street food, some of them haven't been properly trained on how to prepare and handle food safely. This is why it's important to teach them how to keep things clean so people don't get sick. In recent times, people in cities want food that's cheap and tasty, so the street food business is booming! While there are many delicious options, it's important to remember that street food can sometimes be unsafe to eat.

People have loved street food for hundreds of years, all over the world. There are so many reasons why it's popular: it's tasty, there's a lot of variety, it's easy to find, and it's affordable. As cities grow bigger, more and more people need quick and cheap meals. Street food fills that need, and it also gives people jobs selling it.

Comprehension Questions

1. What is street food?

Street food is any kind of food or drink that's already cooked and ready to eat.

2. Where can you find street food?

You can find street food in markets, right on the street, or anywhere in a city that has public places.

3. Who are the people that sell street food?

Vendors in public places.

4. How long has street food been around?

People have loved street food for hundreds of years, all over the world.

5. Why is street food popular?

Street food is popular because it's tasty, there's a lot of variety, it's easy to find, and it's affordable.

6. Why is street food an important part of cities?

Street food is a big part of how cities work to feed everyone because it provides quick and cheap meals for people who live and work in the city.

7. Who often sells street food?

In many countries, women are the ones who cook the food and often sell it on the streets too. Selling food on the street is a good way to make money, especially in places where there aren't many other jobs, and it allows for flexible hours.

8. What is an important thing to remember about street food safety?

While there are many delicious options, it's important to remember that street food can sometimes be unsafe to eat if the vendors haven't been properly trained on how to prepare and handle food.