

THIS THAT THESE THOSE

We usually use THIS THAT THESE and THOSE to point 👉 to people, things, or animals that are close to us or further away.

THIS is used for a single item [singular, countable noun] near you.

This is my cat.

This music is boring.

THIS is also used with uncountable nouns.

THAT is used for a single item [singular, countable noun] a distance from you.

That is your backpack.

That juice is delicious.

THAT is also used with uncountable nouns.

THESE is used for more than one item [plural nouns] near you.

These are my books.

Those are my pencils.

THOSE is used for more than one item [plural nouns] a distance from you.

Remember:

This That These and Those are called Demonstrative Pronouns.

Underline the demonstrative pronoun in each sentence:

1. Would you like some of these cookies?
2. This is my favorite cake.
3. Those noisy boys over there are my brothers.
4. That man with the gray hair is my new teacher.
5. These dancers are excellent.
6. Please pass me that bowl with the fruit salad.
7. I'm sure this is your umbrella.
8. I would like to get one of those donuts from the bakery.