

GIVING ADVICE

© talkmor.com

1. Complex Problem-Solving

Read the complex scenario below.

Scenario:

"Elena has been offered a promotion at work. It pays 20% more money, but she will have to work 60 hours a week instead of 40, and she will have less time for her young family."

Work in groups of 3. Brainstorm three distinct options for Elena and write your group's advice.

1. Option 1: _____
2. Option 2: _____
3. Option 3: _____

2. Final Error Correction

Find and fix the error in each sentence.

1. ✗ "You should to call your parents tonight." _____
2. ✗ "Why you don't ask the manager for help?" _____
3. ✗ "If I was you, I will buy a new laptop." _____
4. ✗ "Have you thinking about changing your job?" _____

3. Master Self-Assessment

Check your progress across the entire unit:

Ability	Not Yet (1-2)	Getting There (3)	Confident (4-5)
I can give personal advice politely.	[_]	[_]	[_]
I can give health advice with softened language.	[_]	[_]	[_]
I can offer professional workplace suggestions.	[_]	[_]	[_]
I can use strong vs. soft advice appropriately.	[_]	[_]	[_]

Teacher's Key

2. Final Error Correction

1. Remove "to" -> "You should call your parents tonight."
2. Word order -> "Why don't you ask the manager for help?"
3. Conditional form -> "If I were you, I would buy a new laptop."
4. Verb form -> "Have you thought about changing your job?"