

THANKSGIVING

© talkmor.com

Speak clearly. Listen to your partner. You can use your own ideas or invent answers.

A. Ask and answer

1. What food can you see in the picture?
2. Which food would you like to try?
3. What food do you eat on special days?
4. Do you prefer eating at home or in a restaurant? Why?
5. Who do you enjoy sharing a meal with?
6. What is one thing you are thankful for?

B. Useful speaking phrases

Would you like some...?

Yes, please. / No, thank you.

Could you pass the...?

Of course. Here you are.

This is delicious!

Thank you for inviting me.

C. Role-play: A special dinner

Student A — Host

Welcome your guest. Offer two kinds of food. Ask what they would like to drink. Say something kind about sharing the meal.

Student B — Guest

Thank the host. Ask for one food item and one drink. Give a polite compliment. Ask about a favourite holiday food.

Swap roles and try again. Add one extra question each time.

D. Make your own invitation

With a partner, plan a meal for friends. Decide the day, place, food, and what each person will bring. Present your plan to another pair.

Partner checklist

- I asked at least two questions.
- I used a polite phrase.
- I listened and answered my partner.
- I spoke in complete sentences when possible.
